

Allegewi

Allegewi is a cryptid that lives in the Allegheny Mountain range that cuts through the United States and Canada. It is known as a group of giants that eats human flesh, is highly intelligent and appears to use tools and primitive cloth. It has also appeared to hunt for self entertainment rather than for survival, like some primates, and like chimpanzees they capture their prey and then releases them in order to catch them again. Some people report it being a large lizard man.

They live in caves near the top of the mountains and they are predatory, they prefer to hunt for their meal. The Allegewi were related to the earlier discovered Adena tribe. They were said to be some of the largest Native Americans of North America. These locals were separated from others by their prominent chins and cranial cavities. They were also some of the strongest and best dieted Natives alive; ranging from 15-25 ft. tall.
